

SPIRO T. AGNEW

Republican Vice Presidential Nominee

World War II Army lieutenant, 1942.

Governor Agnew, in his reception room, 1967.

CONSTITUTION—Article II

In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice-President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected.

(Section I, Clause 6)

(Amendment 25, ratified February 10, 1967, ends years of debate over the vague "disability" clause, by defining how the Vice President may become Acting President. It also provides for the appointment of a Vice President if there is a vacancy in that office.)

Governor Spiro Theodore Agnew of Maryland, 49, was born in Baltimore, and is of Greek descent; his immigrant father shortened his name from Anagnostopoulos. He worked his way through night law school at the University of Baltimore, finally graduating in 1947 after interrupting his studies for four years' Army service in World War II, much of it as a company commander in Europe. He became a Republican, worked for Maryland Congressional election campaigns and was himself elected County Executive of Baltimore County in 1962, as a reform leader. In this capacity he won passage in 1963 of the first local public accommodation law south of the Mason-Dixon Line. With a solid liberal record behind him he attracted Democratic support and was elected Governor of Maryland in 1966. In office he has shown himself to be a capable professional administrator. This year he is considered to have shifted to the right; he has taken a very strong position on civil rights and advocates firmer handling of civil disorder.

He married Elinor Isabel Judefind in 1942; they have four children: Randy, 22 (now serving in the Navy in Vietnam), Pamela, 25, Susan, 20, and Kimberly, 12.

FASHION IN THE NEWS

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Winter hemlines in motion above the knees will give leg fashions flattering exposure. Rims of ruffles, profusions of pleats, luxurious bands of fur, beading and extravagant flounces typify designers' ingenuity in creating knee-level excitement.

Innovations in leg fashions take full advantage of the showcase winter costumes provide. And significant advances in panty hose and stocking technology should make the winter leg show the most eye-appealing ever.

Good news comes from Betty Curry, Burlington's fashion director.

"That common complaint, panty hose droop, has been solved by a new approach to sizing that evaluates hip measurement as well as weight and height," she reported. "The new proportioned-to-fit panty hose in six sizes are designed to provide perfect comfort and sleek waist-to-toe fit—for everyone from petite to stately figure types."

This is good to hear and a boon to the gal who wanted to wear the top-toe total look but felt she had to give it up when her panty hose started to slip at the knee, ankle or even at hip level. She had a choice of looking sloppy or looking silly as she tried to surreptitiously tug and pull.

Another technological breakthrough is designed to rescue fashion-minded activists from the tired feet syndrome. There is an elegant little stocking with potent support that's invisible. It comes in adventurous colors and is achieved by a new kind of jersey knit, using featherweight Spandex made invisible by a new way of blending it with nylon yarn.

It's a bonanza year for the individualist to plan personalized leg drama, too, with shimmer, glitter and feathery patterned lace.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

SCARVES RETURN: Boys and girls digging "Apaches." Scarves end pass through metal cylinder. Sailor-style, tied with square knot, is very unsquare type. The cummerbund ends dangle like sailor's kerchief. Long piece of silk goes "up tight" around waist ... pirate-like!

CALLING ALL CODES: Badgered school authorities beginning to relax in many communities. Higher hemlines are approved. Usually with proviso that skirt covers undergarments and their torsos. The barefoot bit remains taboo. Boys' shirts must be tucked in (??). Culottes have joined the why-not list, but slacks are on the outs almost everywhere.

THE "RED PILL": Birthrate in Soviet Union has declined by one-half in past decade. Only 2 million increase this year. Four million a year in 1958. Birth control pills are looked upon with favor by Soviet policy makers and physicians as a means of reducing number of abortions. Abortions were legalized in 1955, but continue to be a teen problem of great magnitude.

TEEN DOLLAR POWER: Almost 13 million teen girls spend $820 million on cosmetics and toiletries. Only 12 per cent of total population, they are responsible for 25 per cent of total cosmetic purchases.

UNSTUFFY STUFFINGS: Stuffed animals gain momentum. Big with the not-so-little set. Big status item is to collect a "zoo." Pink elephants, purple bulls and bulldogs and teddy bears with turtle-neck sweaters are among the in beasts. Nationwide manager-minding is major with high school and off-to-college set.

POLITICAL STICK-ON PUT-ONS: Politicians aren't the only ones putting on this election. Political minded people are putting on buttons and bumper tags all over town to promote their choices. Dymo Products makes it easy with boxes of 100 self-sticking "Politico" badges. ... great for campaign workers or "party" social events. They also have a "Bumper-wit Kit" for write-your-owns. Kit comes with fluorescent strips and indelible marker pen. Both available at stationery stores.

PROMISES, PROMISES: The deafening silence of both major candidates (and George Wallace, too) on the subject of "Vote at 18" continues to be deafening. This is a subject that inspires unanimous deference to a "states rights" cop-out. Young Americans' discontent with American institutions grows. Red tape and red herring methods deny a voting voice to a well-informed segment of the U.S. population. Few politicians will admit being against the vote at 18. Even fewer do anything about the problem. They continue to tsk tsk at the political activists on college campuses and now in high schools as well. Tsk tsk yourselves, aging lawmakers!

PARENTS' VOTES VS. PEOPLE'S VOTE: This November a lot of presidential votes will be determined by distressed parents of teen-age boys agonizing over the life-death military futures of their sons. Their votes will go to whichever candidate (if any) can convince them he will do something positive to end the war and remove their draftable sons from danger. Accounting for several million votes, such parents should prove more parental and less partisan this election.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

SO NOW: WHAT IS A FATHER?

Dear Helen: I found another for your "What Is A" series. It has been around for a long time, I'm told, but I had never read it before, so, perhaps, other of your readers haven't either:

WHAT IS A FATHER?

A father is a person who is forced to endure childbirth without an anesthetic. He groans when he feels good and laughs very loud when he is scared half to death.

A father never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes. He is never quite the hero his daughter thinks ... Never quite the man his son believes him to be. And this worries him sometimes. (So he works too hard to try and smooth the rough places in the road of those of his own who will follow him.)

A father is a person who goes to war sometimes ... and would run the other way except that war is part of his only important job in life, (which is making the world better for his child than it has been for him.)

Fathers grow older faster than people, because they, in other words, have to stand at the train station and wave goodbye to the uniform that climbs aboard.

And, while mothers cry where it shows, fathers stand and beam ... outside ... and die inside.

Fathers are men who give daughters away to other men, who aren't nearly good enough, so that they can have children that are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers fight dragons almost daily. They hurry away from the breakfast table, off to the area which is sometimes called an office or a workshop. There, with calloused, practiced hands, they tackle the dragon with three heads: Weariness, Work, and Monotony. And they never quite win the fight but they never give up.

Knights in shining armor; fathers in shiny trousers: There's little difference as they march away to each workday.

I don't know where father goes when he dies, but I've an idea that, after a good rest, wherever it is, he won't just sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loved and the children she bore.

He'll be busy there too ... repairing the stairs, oiling the gates, improving the streets, smoothing the way. —AUTHOR UNKNOWN

Dear Readers: Does anyone know the author of this beautiful tribute? I'd like to give credit, for I'm sure it will be clipped and kept by many who agree with "Author Unknown." —H

Dear Helen: Recently you offered proof that newspapers print more good than bad about teenagers. This is probably true, but may I suggest a follow-up? Tell young people to show their appreciation of the "good stories" by writing to the editor and com-

The charming and elegant woman never combs her hair in public. Naturally, it goes without saying that if you are at a restaurant or any public place, and a stray strand falls into your face, excuse yourself and go to the powder room for a quick repair job.

COPENHAGEN (AP) —

Hands folded across his ample belly, Alfred Hitchcock broke his Buddha-like trance, and commanded, "Action!" on his 51st movie.

It was an unlikely location for the beginning of a Hitchcock film: the painting room of the Royal Copenhagen porcelain factory. This was the first of a series of locations that would take him and a film crew from here to Wiesbaden, Germany, Paris, New York, Washington and back to Universal City, Calif. He also intends to acquire some footage in Cuba, but that is a Hitchcockian story that cannot yet be revealed.

Until now the film project has been kept as hush-hush as some of the spy plots in his own movies. Hitchcock has declined interviews and has embarked on the film, based on the Leon Uris best-seller "Topaz," with no fanfare, using virtually an unknown cast. The sole American name is John Forsythe of "Bachelor Father" television fame, who plays a CIA agent.

The leading role of a Frenchman who spies for both the allies and Russia has been given to Frederick Stafford, a Czech who has appeared in a few French films. Costarring is the French actress Dany Robin.

"Topaz" is a faintly fictionalized version of a real-life espionage scandal that rocked Western governments. It is the kind of cloak-and-dagger stuff that Hitchcock relishes.

"I'd say that this is something between 'Suspicion' and 'North by Northwest," he remarked after concluding a scene in which a Russian defector discovers she is being followed by secret police.

"It has the same elements, the same widespread action. What makes it all the more delicious is that it actually happened."

The use of a largely unknown cast is unusual for Hitchcock, 68, who usually relies on top Hollywood names for his leads. He explained his reasoning:

"This type of story requires unfamiliar faces for believability. I don't want the audience to stop and say, 'Oh, that's Cary Grant.'"

Besides, I have grown tired of paying immense salaries to stars. Both Julie Andrews and Paul Newman received $750,000 for my last picture, 'Torn Curtain'—by the time studio overhead was added, it cost $1,800,000 just for two actors.

"'Torn Curtain' cost almost $6 million and made $11 million, which made it all right. But I made 'Psycho' for $800,000 and it grossed $18 million, without big stars. And what about 'Boom,' for which the Burtons received a million dollars apiece? It still did no business—proving that stars don't help."

The book "Topaz" has been viewed with disfavor by the French government, since it implicates high-ranking French officials with trafficking in allied secrets with the Russians.

"Despite French disapproval, we secured permission to shoot in Paris," said Hitchcock. "The only thing we had to change in the script was a reference to De Gaulle. We took it out, and that made everything okay."

FROM THE CHRISTIAN DIOR—New York fall-winter collection comes the brown, yellow and white twill plaid tweed three-piece suit (left). It includes a jersey ottoman tuck-in blouse. Camel satin gabardine wool daytime dress (right) has slit pockets and long sleeves. All accessories are also by Dior-New York

SUPERSALESMAN Caio de Alcantara Machado, head of the Brazilian Coffee Institute, completes a 10,000-mile journey from Rio de Janeiro to Point Hope, Alaska, carrying a 132-pound bag of coffee which he sold to the Eskimos. Machado flew the coffee to Alaska, finishing the trip by dog sledge, to demonstrate his commitment to selling coffee anywhere, even at a barren Arctic outpost.

Bobcats Out to Prove Themselves

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Editor

Now rated the underdog by the Associated Press and some other sources, the Hope Bobcats set out to prove themselves in 4-AA play tonight against the hapless Texarkana Washington Lions with a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Buhrman Field in Texarkana.

Yesterday's AP pickings for the week set the Lions over Hope by a 14-6 count, but the Lions haven't scored 14 points all year. So if the Bobcats win it tonight, you may call it an upset.

In the weekly tapering-off session yesterday afternoon, the squad appeared in good shape and ready to go as they ran through a 70-minute workout. As the game approaches the team seems to come on with a better attitude, and the fact that they are underdogs could enhance the feeling of determination.

No position changes are in this week's starting Bobcat lineup, but Mickey Allen is running at backup fullback behind Mike Monroe. Allen moves back to the slot held through most of his first two years, but he will continue with his job at noseman on defense.

From the looks of things, the Bobcats will likely have Larry Massanelli throwing the ball unless the running game is entirely successful from the start. And receivers David Still and John Kemp are ready for another field day similar to when both scored TD's on pass receptions against DeQueen. These two ends really got knocked around by Malvern's tough secondary last Friday, but they should have an easier time this week.

Personally, this writer must go against the outside world by sticking with the Bobcats, this time with a better argument. Depth and size will tell in the end, and the Bobcats should be sky-high by kickoff time, even though this is considered by many to be a softie.

With the whole coaching staff around to jump in glee, the Bobcats will make believers out of the fans journeying to Texarkana tonight. In a peak effort for the Hope squad, label it a 28-6 divisional walkaway for the Bobcats.

STARTING LINEUP

Hope Bobcats

Offense

Defense

Cantilever Span

The Quebec Bridge spanning the St. Lawrence River in Quebec, Canada, is the largest cantilever bridge ever erected. It contains nearly 17,000 tons of structural nickel steel.

GLAMOR BOYS '68—No longer is it only the guys who catch and throw the passes or run the long runs who get the publicity. The middle linebacker, the "quarterback" of the defense, is emerging as a glamor boy. Three of today's best are Tommy Nobis (left) of Atlanta, Ray Nitschke (center) of Green Bay and Dick Butkus of Chicago.

Tigers Go to Prescott Tonight

By BEN PERKINS
ARTHUR MAXWELL
Yerger Sportswriters

The Yerger Tigers go to Prescott tonight and will be trying for their fourth victory as they tangle with the Tigers of McRae. The Tigers came from behind to tie the Nashville Scrappers last week so they presently stand 2-0-1 in the conference and 3-0-1 for the season. The Tigers are fired up for this game because they would like a victory over their traditional rival, Prescott.

The Tigers defense, which has been a significant factor in all their games, have yielded only 42 points through their first 4 games whereas their explosive offense has put 118 points on the boards. The Tigers defense is handled by Ronald Moses RT, Robert Baker LT, Richard Carter LE, Ira Isley RE, David Benton MLB, Christopher Hindman, RLB, Calvin Shaw LLB, Frank Prater RCB, Jesse (Radar) Henry LCB, Lee Davis S.

The Tigers offense will be centered around Calvin Shaw C, Robert Baker RG, Christopher Hindman LG, Ira Isley RT, Robert Scott LT, Jerry Johnson TE, Thomas Garland SE, Horace Johnson FL, David Block OG, Artis Martin HB, Tommie Lloyd FB.

This should be an excellent evening of high school football entertainment for you and the family, so follow the Tigers to Prescott and see them play.

Tarkenton Says

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The pro football games count now, and the proven pro football players will be counted on. Training camp and the exhibition games are over. Many of those highly regarded rookies, some of whom were minor sensations, will spend most of their time on the bench.

A lot of fans will wonder why. A lot of the rookies will be puzzled, too.

One prominent NFL coach gives this reason, and one which I firmly agree with: "A rookie should not be depended on to play regularly for the first two years of his pro career. The game is so complex, so much faster and so much more pressurized than anything he has been accustomed to."

So coaches go with the veterans, even though the rookies might have outshone them in preseason play and, in fact, may even be better physically. But the value of experience usually outdistances muscular talents. I think you'll see, as the season gets under way, across-the-board use of veterans.

The rookie is not prepared for the unbelievable toughness of all aspects of the game, physical and mental. Actually, the mental barriers most often overwhelm the rookie. I have seen a number of talented young players—strong, agile, fast—who have failed because they lacked mental discipline.

A rookie does not yet understand the immense preparation required.

A rookie does not know how to work like a veteran. He does not know how to study for games like a veteran. He is seldom prepared to play football as it is played in the pros. College ball is a game; pro football is closer to open and total warfare.

Even some of the greatest rookies—who later lived up to potential—started slowly. Gale Sayers and Dick Butkus of the Bears are prime examples.

Both were superstar rookies, maybe the finest first-year men in pro football history. But Papa Bear Halas brought them along with just the right amount of delicacy.

In 1965, Sayers, who might be the most gifted halfback to ever play this game, was rookie of the year. He was absolutely sensational, breaking the NFL record for most touchdowns in a season, 22. What is usually forgotten, however, is that Sayers did not start for the first half of the year. Jon Arnett did.

Arnett would play a quarter or more, then Sayers would go about 2½ quarters. Arnett, then in the twilight of his career, wasn't anywhere near the back Sayers was. But Halas knew that Arnett would be a stabilizing force for Sayers and would take some of the pressure off him. It smoothed Gale's transition from college to the pros.

Butkus, however, was a starter immediately. At first,

Big Fish Story: The Coho Salmon

By JIM SCHWARTZ
Written for NEA

MADISON, Wis. (NEA)—One of the nation's friendliest battles is being fought with fishing lures and tourist dollars on the shores of Lake Michigan, new home of the coho salmon.

The coho, or silver salmon, currently ranks only behind clean, fresh water as the panacea for Michigan and the other Great Lakes. Imported from its native Pacific Ocean by Michigan in 1966, the coho is fast earning a reputation as the scrappiest big gamefish in inland waters—the ferocious muskellunge excluded.

Coho action is heaviest in Lake Michigan where anglers are flocking to lakeside towns in Michigan and Wisconsin to launch small fishing fleets or wade shoulder-to-shoulder near creek mouths and lake bays. Fishermen at Bayfield, Wis., and Thompson and the Manitowish area of Michigan have been hooking cohos averaging about 7 pounds.

By next year, their catches are expected to weigh out to 12 or 20 pounds. Meanwhile, the local economy is reacting to the new recreational surge as motels ring up $14 sales some analysts felt that this huge middle-linebacker was not doing the job. But Halas stuck with him because of his immense ability. Butkus is an ornery type, and an exceedingly hard worker. Because of sheer ability, Halas kept him in. And Butkus went from very adequate to one of the best in the game.

Others have come into prominence only after several years in the league. Les Josephson of the Rams was almost unheard of for his first few years in the NFL. Carroll Dale was only a moderate success with the Rams, was traded to Green Bay, got his confidence, became a stand-out.

A blend of youth and experience is ideal, but in most cases, youth must be patient to be served.

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Sports Editor

CLEVELAND, Ohio—(NEA)—In his job as the field general of the Cleveland Browns, Frank Ryan, the erudite mathematician, stresses field of vision as a theoretical aid to his job. He wants to see how the enemy is laid out before him.

As a practical matter, however, Frank's angle of sight is narrowed down to one little area over the middle once he settles snugly behind the comforting broadness of center Fred Hoaglin, awaiting the snap of the football.

Straight over the helmet of the center, Ryan can see the menacing form of the other team's middle linebacker. It mesmerizes him.

"They all," he says, "just stare at you." And Frank stares back. It's a psychological joust.

Frank is the quarterback of the offense, and he plots the course of the play about to begin. The middle linebacker is the quarterback of the defense, and he has decided on the alignment which would best counter the anticipated attack.

Ryan's job isn't new. There have been quarterbacks from the time Princeton scholars slammed into the men of old Rutgers in the first recorded scrimmage. They have been celebrated as the geni of football and generously applauded. Today, they're also well-paid.

But the guy staring down the quarterback's throat as he calls the signals is a relatively new Homo sapiens. The middle linebacker was created scarcely more than a dozen years ago. In that time, he has attained his own brand of glamor as a hard-hitting character who shares the center stage of pro football.

None other than Vince Lombardi shares in the credit for his creation. When Vince became the architect of the New York Giants' offense in 1954, one of his first designs was to split the spacing in the offensive line. Almost overnight, this made the so-called Eagle defense obsolete.

In the Eagle defense, devised by Greasy Neale at Philadelphia, there was a five-man front packed between the tackles. By spreading the line, the offense immediately got good blocking angles at the cluster, particularly the guy in the middle, then called the middle guard. He was generally a 300-pound specimen like Les Bingham of the Detroit Lions.

The obvious remedy was to widen the defensive front, too, and pull the middle man out of the line. This also changed the physical specifications. You needed a guy who could move in either direction, was smart, big enough to hit and quick enough to help out on the pass coverage duties now assigned to him.

Mark Duncan, the personnel director of the National Football League, was an assistant coach of the San Francisco 49ers at the time and recalls that the Washington Redskins were the first team to go into the basic 4-3-4 defensive alignment which still prevails in pro ball.

"They had this guy (Chuck) Drazenovich," remembers Mark, "and they killed us."

The Detroit Lions quickly followed suit with Joe Schmidt, who became the prototype for all great middle linebackers. The Chicago Bears had their own man, a little bigger, just as quick, in Bill George. And in 1956, the New York Giants produced Sam Huff as the first glamor middle man who could cut into the publicity province of the offensive stars.

Today, as Ryan can testify, the middle linebackers still prevail as the key men on defense. The original trio of Schmidt, George and Huff has been displaced by Dick Butkus of the Chicago Bears, Ray Nitschke of the Green Bay Packers and Tommy Nobis of the Atlanta Falcons as the hero figures. They dominate the scene.

"A good middle linebacker," says Schmidt, who has now progressed to head coach of the Lions, "is in a lot of spectacular plays. He goes where the action is. He must have a natural nose for the ball."

"You take these three guys—Butkus, Nitschke and Nobis. They all have good range. They're very aggressive and tough. Above all, they give you the impression they love football and love to hit people."

Which is what worries a quarterback like Frank Ryan in the first place as he takes his stance behind the center.

OLYMPIC 'SPIRIT'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Executive Director

MEXICO, D. F.—(NEA)—In the year 776 B.C., in the vale of Olympia, a Greek named Coroebus won a 200-yard dash for the first recorded victory in the history of the Olympic Games. It was achieved in the original spirit of the Games—to bring men together in athletic competition during the Illoimonia, a month in which all wars among the Greeks were voluntarily halted.

This spirit has in modern times been distorted, trampled, twisted and even almost obliterated in a crush of nationalistic vigor generated by the many countries who now compete in the Olympics.

Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who stimulated the rebirth of the modern version in 1896, pronounced solemnly, "The important thing in the Olympic Games is not winning but taking part."

Well, on Oct. 13, at 7,348 feet above sea level, at least 7,226 athletes from 119 nations—the largest conglomerate of sports talent in world history—will take part.

Their quest will be for the gold medals symbolic of victory in the Olympics. It will be conducted in an atmosphere of unrest, both at the site of the Games and internationally.

There is the threat of activists disrupting the competition and the threat of boycott by participants.

The kids themselves will enjoy the mingling of kindred spirits, the temporary dissolution of communicative barriers. And for 20 seconds or so, a Tommie Smith will run 200 meters with the same pure athletic zest of Coroebus 2,744 years ago.

It's not a very long period of time for cessation of hostility.

Basket Catch Jr.

MICHAEL MAYS, 9, warms up in the box seats as his father, Willie, is handling the bread-winning in the field for the San Francisco Giants. Michael plays catch with himself after having retrieved the ball hit in the stands. He may have been working on the basket catch, which his father popularized. Man next to the youngster is unidentified.

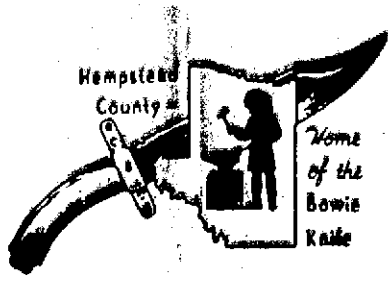

OFFICIALS in Washington, D.C., generally use more elegant transportation, but Peter Straus of the U.S. Agency for International Development likes scooting around the capital on this motor bike. Straus said he's a little kidding, but method gives him fresh saves gas and beats the problems.

THE PRAYERFUL GESTURE of Don Schoellander on a take-off dive isn't exactly symbolic because the 22-year-old Olympic champ doesn't need much help to reaffirm his status as one of the great free-style swimmers in the world.

7 Convicted of Burning Draft Cards

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Seven men and two women, all Roman Catholics, have been convicted of burning draft board records with homemade napalm.

A jury deliberated one hour and 20 minutes Thursday in U.S. District Court, and after the foreman read the guilty verdict to a hushed, crowded courtroom a spectator shouted:

"Members of the jury you have just found Jesus Christ guilty."

Judge Roszel C. Thomsen ordered the courtroom cleared. Spectators moved into the halls, where they began singing, "We Shall Overcome." Outside the building they continued singing and held lighted candles as several dozen helmeted policemen looked on.

The defendants are the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan, 45, of Baltimore; his brother, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, 47, formerly an instructor at Cornell University; Thomas P. Lewis, 27, a Baltimore artist; David Darst, 26, a Christian Brother teacher in St. Louis Mo.; John Hogan, 33, a former Maryknoll brother; Thomas Melville, 38, a former Maryknoll priest, and his wife Marjorie, 38, a former nun; George Mische, 31, a peace organizer from Washington, D.C., and Mary Moylan, 32, a nurse.

They were convicted of mutilating and destroying government records, hindering administration of the Selective Service Act and causing injury to government property. The charges stemmed from an incident May 17 at nearby Catonsville, Md.

They had pleaded innocent, and throughout the four-day trial defense attorneys sought to introduce testimony to show that the actions of the defendants were intended as a public protest against the war in Vietnam.

Each defendant could receive a maximum of 18 years in jail and fines of $17,000 on the three counts of the indictment. The judge ordered the cases submitted to a federal probation department for a report before setting a sentencing date. Seven of the nine were freed on bail.

Resignation Is Accepted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Charles Helou has accepted the resignation of Premier Abdullah Yafi's eight-month-old government.

The move came during the cabinet's regular weekly meeting Wednesday to discuss Yafi's dispute with Justice Minister Suleiman Franjeh over a reshuffle in the judicial corps.

Ike to Get a Long Card

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose 78th birthday is Monday, will receive a block-long birthday card.

In connection with national Salute to Eisenhower Week Oct. 13-20, the Abilene Reflector-Chronicle is sponsoring a Salute-to-Ike signature project.

More than 500 signatures were obtained the first day. The goal is 2,000 signatures.

LBJ Wants Nuclear Pact Adopted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today adoption of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty is important to the security of the nation and declared he will "seriously consider calling the Senate into special session" unless it ratifies the document.

Without ratification, Johnson saw stark omens ahead. He said new nuclear powers might come into being and this could force a dilemma upon the United States:

"Either withdrawing our influence and commitment from areas of the world which are vital to our interests; or

"Having other nations trigger a nuclear conflict which could involve us."

Then with a not too veiled reference to Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Johnson added:

"Those who now argue for postponing ratification of this treaty must assume the grave responsibility for its failure, and for presenting our country with that dilemma."

Under the treaty, nuclear powers would agree not to give away nuclear information and non-nuclear nations would agree not to seek to become producers of atomic weapons.

Johnson said the agreement on a treaty to halt spread of nuclear weapons took years to hammer out.

"We negotiated with the Soviet Union on the language of this treaty," he said, "not as a gift to the Soviet Union, nor as a matter of bridge-building between us, but because we were seeking a result in our own interest which they happened to share for their own reasons."

Had this country allowed its views of totalitarian Communism to prevail, the President said, there would have been no joining in a treaty forbidding atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons and the air now would be filled with poisonous radiation.

Denies Any Mail Rights Violation

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., said Thursday night he did not violate his free mailing privileges when he recently sent out a pamphlet to voters in the 3rd Congressional District.

Hammerschmidt made the statement in a brief speech before more than 600 persons attending a fund-raising dinner in his honor.

Hardy Croxton, Hammerschmidt's Democratic opponent, had charged that the pamphlet was campaign literature promoting Hammerschmidt's bid for re-election. Croxton said it violated mailing privileges given Congressmen.

Hammerschmidt said the folder in question told the people what services were available through his office. He said he did not consider it campaign literature. It reportedly is being distributed at Republican campaign headquarters.

Hammerschmidt also said he did not think a debate with Croxton would benefit the people. Croxton has challenged him to debate. A Fort Smith television station had offered one hour of prime telecasting time for a debate.

Students in New York Stage Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly 100 students at New York University, protesting the dismissal of a Negro educator who called Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon "racist bastards," occupied two campus buildings from dawn to noon today.

The students marched voluntarily out of the building shortly before noon, holding their hands high in V-for-victory signs, chanting that they had won their fight with the university.

Earlier, Dr. Lewis Hyde, provost of the 42,000-student school, had summoned New York City police to the edge of the Bronx campus, saying he would take "whatever steps necessary" to clear the buildings.

The sit-in followed the dismissal Thursday of John F. Hatchett as director of NYU's Martin Luther King Afro-American Student Center.

The demonstrators said that Hatchett had been named dean of black students, but a university spokesman said he had not been rehired.

Several hundred other students gathered in front of the library building.

Newlyweds Can't Live Together

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — You can't live with your new husband for a year, the judges told a young beautiful who pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. But if things work out, they added, you "may live happily ever after."

This was the crux of a ruling Thursday by California's 3rd District Court of Appeal in the case of 20-year-old Anetta Peeler of Oroville.

She was granted probation in May. Between her plea and the granting of probation, she married James Peeler.

Peeler, 23, a student at Chico State College, later was arrested on charges of possessing, selling or maintaining a place for the sale of marijuana. His trial is pending.

In a second hearing on her probation, a local court amended its probation order, saying the Peeler couple couldn't live together for the first year of her three-year probation period.

Mrs. Peeler appealed. A study of the lower court's decision, the judges said, brings up one fact: Mrs. Peeler "is consorting with and proposes now to live with a person presently charged with involvement in the narcotics traffic much more seriously than she is thought to be."

They held out hope that Peeler might be acquitted and be able to show "that he is a fit consort," and that Mrs. Peeler might develop "a mature sense of responsibility" so the court might again modify the terms of her probation so she "and her husband may live happily ever after."

Space Trio to Make Debut on TV

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 7 astronauts are preparing for a five-mile-a-second chase through the heavens in pursuit of the second stage of the Saturn 1B rocket and for their debut on space television.

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham slept in shifts on special bunks their first night in space, enjoying the luxury of being aboard a spacecraft large enough to move around in. Earlier American space pilots dozed in their work clothes, jammed upright in their cramped cabins.

The trio guides their spacecraft today through a series of delicate maneuvers and back to a rendezvous with the second stage of the booster that flawlessly drilled them into orbit Friday.

The rendezvous simulates a lunar rescue of the first Americans to land on the moon. On a lunar flight, the lunar module will ascend from the moon's surface and use a radar system to rendezvous with the command and service module "mother ship."

But in case the lunar module becomes trapped in a lunar orbit, "Mama" will have to come to the rescue. The rescue call: for the command and service module pilot to guide his ship to the lunar module using optical and sextant tracking and dock, permitting the lunar astronauts to transfer to the command ship.

Today's plans were for Schirra to fly the Apollo 7 spacecraft as close as possible to the booster stage, called the S4B, but not actually dock. It was expected the rocket hull would be tumbling through the space void, forbidding the Apollo 7 crew to get much closer than 200 feet.

The crew also turns on the Apollo television system for the first time. Paul Haney, the voice of Apollo control, said the crew would start 10 minutes of television transmission from space during a pass over the United States.

The crew spent the night in lightweight coveralls after working almost eight hours in space wearing bulky and tiring pressure suits.

Legion Plans Annual Drive for Members

Monday October 14 at 7:30 p.m. Leslie Huddleston Post No. 12 American Legion will hold a meeting in the Little Court Room at the Court House.

Vultures Take Over Indian Ghost Town

CALCUTTA (AP) — Vultures have taken over the ghost town that was Jalpaiguri, where flash floods killed hundreds of persons a week ago.

Jalpaiguri and surrounding villages are littered with bodies of people, cattle, cats and dogs. Flocks of vultures are even attacking the living as they sleep.

Until the floods struck, Jalpaiguri was the leading business center of a northern sector of the state of West Bengal. Now it is dead. And volunteer workers are fighting appalling conditions in an effort to bring some return to normal.

Not only are the volunteers harassed by the vultures, but the stench of death and decay forces them to work continuously in gas masks.

All schools, shops and offices are closed. Official death figures for the entire region exceed 1,500. Unfortunately it is reported that at least 4,000 people have died and that 30,000 are yet to be traced.

Station Sold at Ft. Smith

WASHINGTON (AP) — The acquisition of control of Big Chief Broadcasting Co., Fort Smith, Ark., KTCH-AM-FM has been approved by the Federal Communications Commission. Control was acquired by Bill Harper through sale of stock by Lovelle Morris, Jack Beasley and Omer Carl Thompson to the licensee corporation, $150,000 for the AM station and $50,000 for the FM station. Harper is general manager of the stations.

Missing 15 Days, GI Returns Safely

BAN ME THUOT, Vietnam (AP) — A U.S. Army sergeant missing for 15 days made his way back to allied lines and told of escaping from North Vietnamese in a 10-day flight through Cambodia and South Vietnam's central highlands, military sources reported today.

They said Sgt. Buddy Wright, of Wellston, Ohio, stumbled into a South Vietnamese army camp last Sunday pointing to his stomach and saying, "Chop chop, chop chop," which means food to the Vietnamese.

The sources said Wright gave this account of his capture and escape:

He became separated from his platoon Sept. 22 and North Vietnamese seized him southwest of the Duc Lap Special Forces camp near the Cambodian border, 125 miles north of Saigon.

He said the North Vietnamese troops marched him west for two days so he thought he was in Cambodia. They did not mistreat him, but took his wallet, identity tag and boots to prevent him from escaping.

North Vietnamese interrogators asked him the name of his unit, which was the 1st Battalion, 22nd Infantry, 4th Division. But Wright told him he did not know.

The interrogators asked him what kind of a noncommissioned officer didn't even know his unit.

Have said he was a very stupid NCO.

The North Vietnamese had an AK47 assault rifle pointed at him during the interrogation. At night, a guard came by every 30 minutes and pointed a light at him.

During his fifth night of captivity, Wright escaped. He ran all night and all the next day. The North Vietnamese chased him.

"When I saw the North Vietnamese my first thought was, 'I am dead,'" Wright later told other American soldiers. "When they didn't kill me, my will to survive came pretty strong and I decided I will try hard to escape. When I first escaped, I felt I could make it."

"I thought I was directly west of U. S. and had to run east. After two days I became weak and I was not quite sure where I was. I thought I was losing my way and I was scared."

On the second day of his escape, he could see North Vietnamese troops still looking for him. He hid eight hours then struck out again when a heavy rain began to fall.

On the night of Oct. 5, he saw a fire and figured it was in a South Vietnamese camp. He was not sure, so he decided to wait until daylight.

At first light, he saw a soldier with an M16 rifle, the standard allied weapon. Wright walked toward him.

The soldier carried Wright to a hill the South Vietnamese troops were occupying. American advisers called a helicopter which took Wright to Duc Lap, then to the 2nd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division at Ban Me Thuot.

Capt. Daniel H. Trachtenberg of Philadelphia, Pa., a physician who examined Wright at Ban Me Thuot, said, "Sgt. Wright was in amazing good condition for what he had been through."

Wright lost several pounds and had lacerations of his feet, legs and arms which were slightly infected. His feet also were swollen.

During his flight to freedom, Wright survived on nuts and wild berries. While a prisoner, the North Vietnamese fed him rice.

Attack by Enemy Is Beaten Back

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops attacked U.S. Marines in bivouac today near the embattled Thuong Duc Green Beret camp but were beaten back within 100 yards of the Leathernecks' defensive lines.

The enemy troops lost 31 dead in 3 1/2 hours of fighting, the U.S. Command said, but killed eight Marines and wounded 20. The fight raged three miles northeast of the Green Beret—Special Forces—camp in jungled foothills 27 miles southwest of Da Nang.

The enemy force, of unknown size, apparently tried to take advantage of predawn darkness and overcast skies that hampered U.S. jet fighter-bombers in striking back.

A U.S. spokesman said the enemy troops attacked with machine guns and small arms and did not use mortars to cover their assault as they often do.

"They were trying to achieve surprise," he said. "They tried to sneak up and get caught."

The Marines fought back with small arms and machine guns, and artillery units opened up on the charging North Vietnamese troops. Some American fighter-bombers were able to streak in to support the Marines but the poor visibility prevented saturation strikes of the enemy positions.

Air Force World War II twin-engine C47 cargo planes converted into gunships also attacked with rapid firing gatling guns spewing out 6,000 rounds of ammunition a minute.

Marines sweeping the battlefield at daybreak today were still drawing some enemy fire but it was light and sporadic. This indicated the bulk of the enemy force had pulled back to fight again when it chose to.

The Thuong Duc Special Forces camp sits astride enemy infiltration corridors leading into Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, and other population centers along the coastal lowlands.

Allied officers estimate that anywhere from 5,000 to 7,500 North Vietnamese troops, are operating between Thuong Duc and Da Nang.

Elsewhere, allied ground and air forces battled enemy troops on two sides of Saigon and the fringes of the demilitarized zone Friday, killing 107 enemy soldiers in four sharp clashes, military spokesmen reported.

President Will Sign Gun Bill

By TOM JEPPEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson indicated today he will sign the strongest gun control legislation in the nation's history but called for continued efforts for registration of guns and licensing of gun owners.

A bill outlawing mail orders of rifles, shotguns, ammunition passed Congress Thursday. Without waiting for it to reach the White House, Johnson said he was glad the public would be protected now against indiscriminate mail order sales.

Also barred are direct sales to a person outside the state in which he lives, although a state can, by specific legislation, authorize its citizens to buy guns in an adjoining state.

In a statement, Johnson praised the legislation but expressed sorrow over its lack of authority for gun registration and licensing.

"In a nation with over 100 million guns—almost four times as many firearms as families—registration and licensing would have brought far greater protection to the people," Johnson said. "But the voices of the gun lobby prevailed for the moment and these safeguards were defeated."

"So now we must wait and continue to work toward the day when these elementary safeguards—long adopted by other civilized nations of the world—become the law of our land. I hope the good people of America will help us in this continued effort."
